Tape Land 129 – FEN Beyond the Range of the Groove (March 1990) 1:13:33

Welcome to Tape Land! On each episode, I'll present the audio of a cassette tape or historic material from my personal archives.

Another great find! The tape itself just has "FEN" (my initials) written on it, and I don't think I've ever heard it since I recorded it. It's a rare window into the world of 1990 – 31 years ago! At the time, I was working on my "Nomadi" project which I would rename "Obliviana" soon thereafter. After going through many bizarre phases, Obliviana would eventually lead to The Onsug that we know and love today.

Notes: 8:36 PM, Thursday, March 15, 1990, been asleep all day, strange dreams (lost in France, telekinetic cheese stones), The Eight Practices of Nomadi, logic, changing reality, police car, school, thrust, groove, Nomading, arrived at Quality Comics, 9:40 PM, weird things happening, a line to get into 7-11, beyond the range of the groove, 6:03 AM, Friday, March 16, 1990, dot matrix printer, feeling of optimism, 1:50 AM, Saturday, March 17, 1990, on a nocturnal schedule, job in NYC, how my life is going, Red Alley Earth, Some Berry Basalt of Brine, The Hollow Fantasia, Be, Zope, Route 22, another 7-11, Tiny Tots, Furs by Guarino, streetlights, driving up an unknown hill, cul-de-sac, airport, supermarket, Noyagers, Nomadi places, decentralizing your home, spinach fettuccine, Caffeine Free Diet Coke, steer clear of becoming a cult, drugs, relationships.

The Midnight Citizen 226: “The Karen Situation” (6/20/21) 1:36:11

Join Mike in the studio on a stormy Saturday night...

...talking about how he became a hero in the Dunkin Donuts for dealing with a “Karen”, and got a free donut. Also, a toast to Actor Ned Beatty, who died this week at 82, and gave us one of the most horrifying scenes in the history of cinema (it’s not the one you think).

Show Notes: Dealing with an entitled “Karen” at the coffee shop, who wouldn’t leave until she got an apology from the manager for forgetting her hashbrowns; what is a “Karen”, as the kids call her, and the origins of the term; five year anniversary of a woman drop-kicking her kid’s birthday cake at Kroger; the theatre dream; my trip to Nashville, wondering if I could live and work there; Music Break*; the dangerous things kids’ adventure films of the 80’s taught us; a toast to Ned Beatty; Video Street Video Store; the epic failure of the game, “Daikatana” in 1999; the Max Headroom hack of 1987.

The Midnight Citizen 227: “Skip the Preach, Go to the Beach” (6/27/21) 1:22:28

Join Mike in the studio on a Saturday night...

...talking about a trip he took to the beach with the church youth group in 1996, and how most of the time was spent not on the sand, but in the cold conference room of the Holiday Inn, praying and reading the bible. Yikes. He should’ve just skipped the preach and gone to the beach.

Also: I finished teaching summer camp this week; working alongside my students; teaching Shirley Jackson’s “The Lottery” using dodgeball; the promise of the Internet in the 1990’s; remembering the show “227” .

Music Break: “Suddenly It Occurs to Me There’s No Ocean Here” by Artificial Intelligence; “Transcontinental Super Conscious State” by the Space Merchants

Intro/Closing Music: “Oolin Poolin Oy” by Blue Wave Theory

SERMONS #4 – Of Watchers & Nephilim (6/7/21) 29:30

Dave in Kentucky concludes the story of Enoch & the Watchers that was begun in the previous episode, and poses the following questions: Are the Nephilim giants, fallen angels, ancient astronauts, or all of the above? Does the term Nephilim apply to the Watchers, their offspring, or both? Are the Watcher and the “holy one” from Nebuchadnezzar’s dream in Daniel 4:13 two distinct beings, or only one? Who are the irin, the malachim, and the cherubim? Tune in for the answers; you just might learn something.

SERMONS #5 – Noah’s Barbecue (6/21/21) 30:35

In this episode, the Yahweh Elohim decide to destroy mankind — or do they? Noah and his family are spared, plus enough other creatures to repopulate the planet, so what was the point? Noah is grateful, however, so he builds an altar and barbecues some of the surplus clean beasts for them. This becomes a tradition, even after the gods are no longer physically present. But the meat could still be consumed via long distance, as in the contest between Elijah and the Prophets of Baal, with its highly disturbing denouement!
